Abstract of the Talk

While the world has adopted to this new norm in last 20 months or so – is it really or can it really be a new norm? Daman will shed light on opportunities that this offers. In this webinar, a large portion of the discussions will focus on the other side – the challenges that work from home presents to organisations as well as individuals. Based on over 90 small surveys covering thousands of participants from various companies and countries, including students also – he will explain the results. Daman will also throw light on the importance of mental health that is equally important as the physical strength, and will present the summary of Global Emotional Impact Assessment Report that he produced with 7 other thought leaders from the world. The session will be kept interactive through live polls.
